COURSE CONTENT
Prehistoric Ages in Anatolia, Chalcolithic and Bronze Ages, Hittite State, Anatolian Civilizations, Greek and Roman Cities in Anatolia.
COURSE OBJECTIVES
The primary aim of this lesson is to introduce Anatolian Civilizations to students at a basic level through the conceptual definition of civilization. Based on the examples of Anatolian Civilizations that have survived to the present day, it is aimed for students to first gain information about the areas that have a place in the tourism sector such as ancient cities, ruins and museums in their own environment.
CONTRIBUTION OF THE COURSE TO THE VOCATIONAL TRAINING
It contributes to the development of the general cultural levels of individuals who will work in human-oriented sectors such as tourism. Having information about the cultural assets and historical places in the environment where they work will positively affect the quality of communication in working life.
